

ROBERT D CREASY

My family and I moved to Minturn in 2020 to be closer to elderly parents and to offer our children more opportunities as they approached high school. We have found Minturn to be a charming and welcoming community. Now that our kids are about to be on their way, I have more time to contribute to our town.

While I still have much to learn about the issues that are facing Minturn, and I have just begun to hear from the current residents about what matters most to them, I hope to provide a fresh perspective on how to approach important town issues.

In addition to practicing architecture for almost 24 years with licenses in four states including Colorado, I served our previous mountain town, Mammoth Lakes, in multiple roles, including:

- Director of the community water district
- Fire commissioner for the fire department.
- Member of the town's Advisory Design Panel.
- Member of the county's Construction Board of Appeals.
- Chairman of the local non-profit organization promoting energy efficiency and sustainability.

I hope my experiences serving our previous community will provide some new insights into a few of the most important issues facing Minturn, specifically: our water issues, wildland/urban interface fire hazards, planning and zoning updates, as well as the energy efficiency of our town operations. All these subjects have a significant impact on our current residents' wellbeing and financial resilience, and I believe they should inform how we address future development within Minturn.

Thank you for considering me for a position on Minturn's Town Council.
